Item 8.01. Other Events

On November 10, 2011, the California Public Utilities Commission (“CPUC”) issued an order instituting a formal investigation (“OII”) into whether Pacific Gas and Electric Company (“Utility”), a subsidiary of PG&E Corporation, violated state law, the CPUC’s rules, general orders, or decisions, federal regulations, or other applicable rules or requirements pertaining to the operation of its natural gas transmission pipeline system in or near locations of higher population density. Under federal and state regulations, the class location designation of a pipeline is based on the types of buildings, population density, or level of human activity near the segment of pipeline, and is used to determine the pipeline’s maximum allowable operating pressure (“MAOP”) up to which it can be operated. In the OII, the CPUC refers to the Utility’s June 30, 2011 report of its system-wide review of class location designations for its natural gas transmission pipelines. In its report, the Utility stated that its review indicated that (1) some pipeline segments had, or may have had, a MAOP higher than appropriate for their current class location designations and (2) approximately 172 miles of transmission pipeline segments had been shown in its records as a lower class location than indicated by the review.

In the OII, the CPUC will determine, among other issues, whether the Utility failed to conduct class location studies when required, failed to adequately patrol and conduct continuing surveillance of its pipeline transmission system, failed to replace pipeline segments or reduce MAOP when the class location designation of a segment changed, and failed to furnish and maintain adequate, efficient, just and reasonable natural gas transmission service. If the CPUC determines that the Utility violated applicable law, the CPUC may impose penalties of up to $20,000 per day per violation, or up to $50,000 per day per violation for violations occurring on or after January 1, 2012, when the maximum statutory penalty increases. PG&E Corporation and the Utility are unable to estimate the amount of potential penalties the CPUC could impose, and such amounts could have a material effect on their future financial condition, results of operations, and cash flows.

The Utility’s response to the OII is due in mid-December 2011, unless extended by the assigned CPUC administrative law judge (“ALJ”). After the ALJ holds a pre-hearing conference, an order will be issued to establish the procedural schedule in the proceeding, including the date for evidentiary hearings.
