Taro’s Interim Chief Executive Officer, Jim Kedrowski, commented, “The third quarter, which is typically our strongest, was a very good quarter for Taro as illustrated by these financial results. Progress continues on all fronts as demonstrated by our top-line growth, the reduction in SG&A expenses and improved manufacturing performance. However, a portion of this revenue growth is attributable to our ability to capitalize on current market opportunities which may not be sustainable. In addition, Taro's product pipeline has not developed as quickly as we expected as evidenced by the level of our R&D expenses and by the relatively low number of product filings and approvals.”
