Matsushita Electric Announces Annual Management Policy

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd. (MEI [NYSE symbol: MC]), best known for its Panasonic brand name, today announced its annual management policy for fiscal 2005, ending March 31, 2005. The following is an outline of the policy, as announced by the company president, Kunio Nakamura.

Review of Value Creation 21 Three Year Business Plan

1. Purposes of the Value Creation 21 plan

In line with the keywords Deconstruct and Create, MEI has implemented in the mid term business plan from fiscal 2002 the following initiatives and established a management style for the 21st century through various reforms.

- (1) Deconstruction (structural reforms): sales/distribution structure reforms for consumer electronics in Japan, employment restructuring, manufacturing process reforms, and integration/closure of manufacturing locations.
- (2) Creation (growth strategies): new business domain-based structure, management focusing on cash flows, black-box technologies, and more efficient organizations.

2. Value Creation 21 Review

- (1) After posting a huge loss in fiscal 2002, MEI's business performance has improved remarkably, achieving a V-shaped performance recovery.
- (2) Competitive and strong-selling V-products have helped MEI regain market shares.
- (3) IT infrastructure has improved and helped flat, web-like organizations function better, facilitating empowerment and nurturing a corporate culture.

3. Global Marketing Strategies

- (1) Promoted worldwide simultaneous launch and vertical take-off of new products through vigorous marketing.
- (2) Promoted a renewed Matsushita Group and its products with the unified global brand Panasonic and new global brand slogan Panasonic ideas for life.

Outline of the New Mid-term Business Plan Leap Ahead 21

During the three-year period from April 2004 through March 2007, MEI will shift its performance stage from creating to leaping ahead, naming the new mid-term business plan Leap Ahead 21.

1. Enhancing Customer Value

In line with its corporate vision of helping realize a ubiquitous network society and contributing to coexistence with the global environment, MEI will aim at achieving the following objectives: To realize a ubiquitous network society, MEI will offer products and services incorporating the values of safety and security, and on-demand services transcending the constraints of time and space with ease and convenience. To achieve coexistence with the global environment, MEI pursues a new prosperity which helps realize a sustainable society balancing both environmental-friendliness and convenience. MEI will continue to develop with the aim of becoming a Customer Value Creation Company in 2010. The Leap Ahead 21 plan is a milestone, when seen from the perspective of what the company should be like in fiscal 2007.

2. Goals to Achieve with Leap Ahead 21 Plan

In fiscal year ending March 31, 2007, MEI aims to secure its growth track by achieving operating profit ratio of 5% or more, and CCM zero or higher.

MEI's financial targets to be achieved by fiscal year ending March 31, 2007

(Consolidated basis, excluding the effect of take over bid over Matsushita Electric Works shares)

Sales: 8,200 billion yen

Operating Profit: 410 billion yen

3. Strategies for Products, Business, and R&D

(1) Develop V-products as the engine driving business growth featuring:

n Black-box technologies

- n Universal design

- n Consideration for the environment such as saving energy and resources

For the fiscal year ending March 31, 2005, MEI will introduce 71 new V-products, with a sales target of 1.5 trillion yen.

(2) Strengthen the value chain from components and devices to finished products

- n Being fully aware of the significance of the semiconductor business, due to the added value of digital products coming from system LSI s, the company will invest 130 billion yen over the next two years, starting from this May.

Table of Contents

-3-

(3) Propose new lifestyles

n MEI will create added value by embedding services into finished products.
(e.g. T navi Internet-based information services for digital TVs, Σ (Sigma) Book for Internet publishing) n Matsushita will offer unique ideas to customers.

(e.g. washer/dryer with a 30-degree slanted drum, networked home appliances)

(4) Strengthen R&D based on a 10-year vision

n The company will create a 10-year vision for corporate R&D strategies. To realize this vision, each R&D project is to be reviewed and adjusted every year, with a view to selecting and concentrating R&D resources for maximum R&D investment efficiency while lowering its ratio of R&D expenditure to sales to 7% or less.

n By sharing the 10-year vision & roadmap group-wide, the company will focus on investment in strategic products, strengthen intellectual property strategies, and develop more black-box technologies.

4. Overseas Operations as Growth Engines

(1) MEI will strongly promote the worldwide simultaneous launch and vertical take-off of V- products.

(2) MEI will realize one trillion yen business in China in fiscal 2006.

5. Strengthen Financial Position

MEI commenced a new cost reduction project in June 2003, with the goal of improving the company's overall cost structure by eliminating unnecessary costs. By shifting from a divisional structure to a business domain-based organizational structure, Matsushita will be able to carry out more effective cost reduction activities. The new structure will also facilitate group-wide implementation of cost reduction activities, leading to improved overall results. The company intends to eliminate costs equivalent to 100 billion yen for the fiscal 2004-2005 two-year period, ending March 31, 2005.

New Group Structure for the Next Era

Edgar Filing: MATSUSHITA ELECTRIC INDUSTRIAL CO LTD - Form 6-K

MEI announced it has entered into a basic agreement with Matsushita Electric Works, Ltd. (MEW) to unify the management strategies of the two companies by increasing its capital ownership of MEW. Based on common management philosophies and strategies, the two companies will combine their respective strengths to form a new Matsushita Group, thus augmenting their considerable resources as top global companies.

1. Establishing 21st Century Collaboration Committee (Please refer to the Appendix.)

In this committee, the two companies will discuss strategies for new growth and higher productivity from a group and global perspective, as well as from a customer's point of view and taking advantages of their unparalleled competitive edge.

2. Offering Solutions for a Comfortable Living

In addition to the fields of home appliances, household equipment, construction materials, electric equipment and lighting, which the two companies are already active in, the new group structure will assist both companies to enter new fields such as home and building networks, environment-related businesses, healthcare, and medical equipment. The two companies aim to achieve a synergy effect by collaborating on development in such new fields.

Toward a More Vibrant Enterprise

1. As a Public Entity in Society

With its belief that a company is a public entity in society, MEI reconfirms its commitment to serving society through its businesses and improving management transparency from the viewpoint of Corporate Social Responsibility (CSR).

2. Rejuvenate Matsushita

Regarding the relationship between the individual and the company, MEI will aim to rejuvenate Matsushita from the following perspectives:

- n Participative Management : Implement customer-first principle through harmonious teamwork and the creative efforts of individual employees.
- n Merit System : Appraisal and compensation will be based on ability and achievement.
- n Valued Employees : Build a win-win relationship between employees possessing specific and valuable skills and the company by rewarding such skilled employees appropriately.

Management Slogan for 2004

Leap Ahead 21 Acting with the Spirit of a Founder

Blaze a Trail to a New Era

Arriving at the point where the company is about to make a significant leap forward, MEI announces with pleasure that the company is ready for the next stage: to cultivate a new future.

Matsushita Announces 130 billion yen Investment for Semiconductor Facility

Producing 90nm processing system LSIs for digital appliances

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd. (MEI [NYSE symbol : MC]), best known for its Panasonic brand name, announced a plan for the construction of a new semiconductor production facility at its Uozu Plant in Toyama Prefecture with an investment of 130 billion yen. The expansion project is planned in a move to increase production capacity of advanced system LSIs which require cutting-edge 90-nanometer processing technology. MEI plans to begin construction in May 2004 and launch production toward the end of 2005.

The company has been leading the digital home electronics market with its 0.13-micron processing system LSIs with a vision to help realize a ubiquitous networking society through the development of miniaturization technology. Now it plans to increase the supply of further advanced system LSIs focusing on five key areas, namely DVDs, DTVs, mobile communications equipment, SD Memory Cards and network-related equipment as well as CCD (charge coupled device) image sensors.

The new plant, which will be equipped with the latest 90-nanometer production process for large-diameter 300mm diameter wafers, will start production at the end of 2005 and increase production capacity eventually to 7,500 wafers per month. Plans call for future upgrading to finer processes toward 65 nanometers and further expanding production capacity to cope with expected increase of demand.

Matsushita Electric Industrial Announces Schedule and Conditions of Tender Offer

for Shares of Matsushita Electric Works

Matsushita Electric Industrial Co., Ltd. (MEI [NYSE symbol: MC]), best known for its Panasonic brand name, announced the schedule and conditions of the acquisition of additional shares of Matsushita Electric Works, Ltd. (MEW) by means of a tender offer.

1. Purposes of initiating tender offer

As announced in the December 19, 2003 press release Matsushita Electric Industrial Announces Tender Offer for Shares of Matsushita Electric Works, MEI will acquire additional shares of MEW, amounting to a total of 51% ownership of MEW's issued shares, by means of a tender offer. The tender offer, for which MEW has expressed support, is part of efforts to establish an optimum operating structure from a customers' point of view, and accelerate comprehensive collaboration between the two companies.

By combining MEI's extensive management resources in the areas of digital networking, home appliances, components and devices, and R&D, with MEW's considerable expertise in the living environments field, the two companies aim to achieve synergy effects resulting in a new Matsushita group, offering solutions for comfortable living to address such issues as the realization of a ubiquitous networking society and coexistence with the environment.

Meanwhile, the increased collaboration is also expected to facilitate creation of new growth opportunities and improved productivity in a number of business areas. MEI and MEW intend to combine groupwide efforts in R&D, manufacturing and sales, and work to enhance overall efficiency, while strengthening product development capabilities and cost competitiveness. Through these initiatives, the two companies will strive to achieve further growth in such areas as home appliances, household equipment & building products, electrical construction materials, lighting, home & building information networks, environment-related systems, and healthcare & medical equipment, thereby resolidifying the Matsushita group's position as a global leader.
