Reasons for Revisions

Hitachi expects consolidated revenues for the first half of fiscal 2009 to be in line with its previous forecast, which was announced on May 12, 2009 along with the operating results for fiscal 2008. While industrialized economies have been slow to recover and capital investment in industrial fields remains suppressed, stimulus measures around the world have had an effect, China and other emerging nations have staged economic recoveries.

In terms of operating loss, Hitachi is projecting an improvement on its previous forecast, having returned to profitability in the second quarter (from July, 2009 to September, 2009). This is based mainly on the benefits of Company-wide activities to cut fixed expenses and procurement expenses; progress with structural reforms in the Digital Media & Consumer Products segment and automotive systems businesses; and improved profitability in Social Innovation Business projects.

Furthermore, due to a decrease in projected net other deductions as well, attributable primarily to improvements in equity in losses of semiconductor affiliated company, Hitachi is also projecting improvements from its previous forecasts for loss before income taxes, net loss and net loss attributable to Hitachi, Ltd. for the interim period.

Hitachi has lowered its previous forecast for full-year consolidated revenues on concerns about the slow pace of recovery mainly in private-sector capital expenditure, although it expects the nascent economic recovery to continue in the second half of fiscal 2009. On the earnings front, Hitachi has raised its previous forecast on the basis of stronger earnings power in the Social Innovation Business, the benefits of business structure reforms and improved hard disk drive business earnings.

Cautionary Statement

Certain statements found in this document may constitute forward-looking statements as defined in the U.S. Private Securities Litigation Reform Act of 1995. Such forward-looking statements reflect management's current views with respect to certain future events and financial performance and include any statement that does not directly relate to any historical or current fact. Factors that could cause actual results to differ materially from those projected or implied in any forward-looking statement and from historical trends include, but are not limited to:

economic conditions including consumer spending and plant and equipment investments in Hitachi's major markets, particularly Japan, Asia, the United States and Europe, as well as levels of demand in the major industrial sectors which Hitachi serves, including, without limitation, the information, electronics, automotive, construction and financial sectors; fluctuations in product demand and industry capacity, particularly in the Information & Telecommunication Systems segment, Electronic Devices segment and Digital Media & Consumer Products segment; increased commoditization of information technology products and digital media related products and intensifying price competition for such products, particularly in the Information & Telecommunication Systems segment, Electronic Devices segment and Digital Media & Consumer Products segment;

uncertainty as to Hitachi's ability to continue to develop and market products that incorporate new technology on a timely and cost-effective basis and to achieve market acceptance for such products;

rapid technological innovation, particularly in the Information & Telecommunication Systems segment, Electronic Devices segment and Digital Media & Consumer Products segment; exchange rate fluctuation for the yen and other currencies in which Hitachi makes significant sales or in which Hitachi's assets and liabilities are denominated, particularly against the U.S. dollar and the euro; fluctuations in the price of raw materials including, without limitation, petroleum and other materials, such as copper, steel, aluminum and synthetic resins; uncertainty as to Hitachi's ability to implement measures to reduce the potential negative impact of fluctuations in product demand, exchange rate and/or the price of raw materials;

general socio-economic and political conditions and the regulatory and trade environment of Hitachi's major markets, particularly Japan, Asia, the United States and Europe, including, without limitation, direct or indirect restrictions by other nations on imports, or differences in commercial and business customs including, without limitation, contract terms and conditions and labor relations;

uncertainty as to Hitachi's access to, or ability to protect, certain intellectual property rights, particularly those related to electronics and data processing technologies;

Edgar Filing: HITACHI LTD - Form 6-K

uncertainty as to the outcome of litigation, regulatory investigations and other legal proceedings of which the Company, its subsidiaries or its equity method affiliates have become or may become parties;

the possibility of incurring expenses resulting from any defects in products or services of Hitachi; uncertainty as to the success of restructuring efforts to improve management efficiency and to strengthen competitiveness;

uncertainty as to the success of alliances upon which Hitachi depends, some of which Hitachi may not control, with other corporations in the design and development of certain key products;

uncertainty as to Hitachi's ability to access, or access on favorable terms, liquidity or long-term financing; and uncertainty as to general market price levels for equity securities in Japan, declines in which may require Hitachi to write down equity securities it holds.

The factors listed above are not all-inclusive and are in addition to other factors contained in Hitachi's periodic filings with the U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission and in other materials published by Hitachi.
