When we announced the transaction with Nielsen back in December, I committed to regular updates on the status and process. To that end, I want to let you know that today both Arbitron and Nielsen received what is called a "second request" for information from the Federal Trade Commission regarding the proposed merger with Nielsen. As the name implies, it represents a request for additional information beyond that which has already been provided to the FTC.

While I appreciate that any news regarding the transaction process may naturally lead to speculation, there is really no conclusion to be drawn from this request. We have said from the outset that the regulatory review process is a thorough and detailed information gathering and educating exercise. A second request is a normal part of the process. We anticipated that the FTC might need more information, and have planned and prepared for that.

While this process continues to play out, we need to remain focused on our customers, the quality of our services, delivering on our financial objectives and of course, our employees. I understand, however, that this is easy to say and harder to do in the context of a pending transaction. I thank each of you for the professionalism, commitment and focus you have demonstrated to date in what is an uncertain environment.

We remain very committed to the process, and of course, very enthusiastic about the transaction. I look forward to the upcoming Coffee with Creamer sessions March 13th, and will be glad to answer your questions then.

Have a good weekend,

Sean R. Creamer
