Follow-up disclosure of a public filing released on May 15, 2012 relating to oil exploration projects in Nigeria

On April 7, 2017, Korea Electric Power Corporation ( KEPCO ) was informed that the Nigerian Federal Supreme Court made the final ruling on the appeal by a consortium consisting of KEPCO, Korea National Oil Corporation and Daewoo Shipbuilding & Marine Engineering in relation to the Nigerian Court of Appeal 's decision in 2012. The Nigerian Federal Supreme Court dismissed the appeal and confirmed the Nigerian Court of Appeal 's decision that the Nigerian Federal High Court did not have proper jurisdiction over the matter.

In January 2009, the Nigerian government decided to nullify oil exploration projects regarding OPL321 and POL323 in Nigeria for which the consortium had made successful bids. The consortium filed a lawsuit in the Nigerian Federal High Court to nullify the Nigerian government 's decision, and the Federal High Court ruled in August 2009 that the Nigerian government illegally cancelled offshore oil exploration rights awarded to the consortium and banned the Nigerian government from further interfering with the consortium.

In response to the Nigerian Federal High Court 's decision, the Nigerian government and Owel Petroleum Services Nigeria Ltd. appealed the decision, and the Nigerian Court of Appeal reversed the decision of the Nigerian Federal High Court, specifying that the Federal High Court did not have proper jurisdiction to rule on this matter. The consortium appealed the decision to the Nigerian Federal Supreme Court on June 18, 2012 and received the final ruling on April 7, 2017, as mentioned above.

The consortium is currently assessing its options in relation thereto, including filing an additional lawsuit. However, taking into account changes in the business environment, we are seeking to settle the dispute through a reconciliation with the Nigerian government on the condition that we are able to recoup the investments we have made.

The consortium holds 60% of the equity interest in the project, and KEPCO holds approximately 8.8% of the interest in the consortium. The remaining equity interests in the project are held, 30% by Equator Exploration of the United Kingdom and 10% by a Nigerian company, respectively.
