THIRD QUARTER REPORT

SEPTEMBER 30, 2016

LETTER TO SHAREHOLDERS

Dear Fellow Shareholders,

The week after returning from the Independence Day holiday, investors saw the S&P 500 advance 3.6%. Following this strong initial move, which contributed most of the quarter's return, markets settled into a relatively calm trading range. Strong consumer confidence numbers, coupled with corporate earnings that largely surprised to the upside, helped boost investor confidence. As a result, the S&P 500 gained 3.9% over the quarter, bringing its year-to-date return to 7.8%.

As the quarter drew to a close, volatility picked up. Oil prices rallied when OPEC announced an agreement to reduce production targets as a means to lift prices, and markets reacted well. The growing uncertainty around how long central banks in Europe, the U.S., and Japan can maintain accommodative monetary policies also contributed to the late-quarter volatility. The Federal Reserve once again voted against raising interest rates, though seemed to edge closer to resuming rate hikes pending evidence of continued progress toward inflation and employment goals.

Amid the persistent low-interest rate environment and investors' ongoing desire for yield, the dividend-focused stocks in the Utility and Telecommunication sectors have advanced 16.1% and 17.9%, respectively, year to date. However, those sectors faltered in September with the Fed's commentary and financial companies that had been battered for much of the year started to recover. For the quarter, the Technology sector's return far exceeded all other sectors, advancing 12.9% and offsetting a flat first six months' return.

Our portfolio benefitted from holdings in the four largest technology stocks: Apple, Microsoft, Facebook, and Alphabet. Each beat expectations and was rewarded with double-digit stock price advances. We added a new position in the Technology sector, Hewlett Packard Enterprise, a provider of hardware solutions to enterprise customers, including servers, storage, and networking equipment. Since splitting from its parent company in late 2015, Hewlett has experienced improving fundamentals. In addition, the management team continues to focus on ways to trim the product portfolio and drive shareholder value. The company is currently in the process of spinning off its services and software divisions. These moves will generate substantial cash flow and provide the potential to return a significant amount of cash back to shareholders.

In the Financial sector, we established a position in Florida-based Raymond James Financial, a well-run regional brokerage firm focused on the private client market. The company enjoys an industry-leading position as one of the largest independent retail brokerage houses and benefits from operating outside of the traditional Wall Street "wirehouse" model. The independent brokerages are growing market share by providing financial advisors with more product flexibility and superior economics. Additionally, Raymond James is a likely beneficiary of recent changes to the Department of Labor's fiduciary standards. We eliminated our position in Capital One Financial as its exposure to subprime loans did not position the company well at this stage in the credit cycle.

Mergers often provide compelling opportunities for investors. We believe the proposed merger between Dow Chemical and DuPont is one such example and we initiated a position in Dow. As an independent company, Dow has spent the last few years streamlining its operations and is set to capitalize on an improving market for ethylene producers. Additionally, there is significant growth potential in Dow's product pipeline. A combination with DuPont offers even greater opportunity and significant synergies. Post the merger, management intends to unlock more value through plans to spin the assets out into three leaner publicly-traded companies with focused strategies for growth.

LETTER TO SHAREHOLDERS (CONTINUED)

The upcoming Presidential election is likely to be the most impactful event of the fourth quarter and will influence markets for years to come. In the balance is the unknown direction of several issues including health care, the composition of the Supreme Court, and monetary as well as fiscal policy. Strongly drawn partisan lines create a broad range of outcomes for these weighty issues. In the face of this, we will continue to execute our process: searching for good companies, doing good things, at good prices. Even in an uncertain environment, we believe our process will reward the patient investor.

For the nine months ended September 30, 2016, the total return on the Fund's net asset value ( NAV ) per share (with dividends and capital gains reinvested) was 5.3%. This compares to a 7.8% total return for the S&P 500 and a 6.0% total return for the Lipper Large-Cap Core Funds Average over the same time period. The total return on the market price of the Fund's shares for the period was 3.7%.

For the twelve months ended September 30, 2016, the Fund's total return on NAV was 12.7%. Comparable figures for the S&P 500 and Lipper Large-Cap Core Mutual Funds Average were 15.4% and 12.5%, respectively. The Fund's total return on market price was 10.9%.

During the first nine months of this year, the Fund paid distributions to shareholders in the amount of $14.6 million, or $.15 per share, consisting of $.01 net investment income and $.02 long-term capital gain, realized in 2015, and $.12 of net investment income realized in 2016, all taxable in 2016. These constitute the first three payments toward our annual 6% minimum distribution rate commitment. Additionally, the Fund repurchased 875,663 shares of its Common Stock during the past nine months. The shares were repurchased at an average price of $12.74 and a weighted average discount to NAV of 15.7%, resulting in a $0.02 increase to NAV per share.

By order of the Board of Directors,

Mark E. Stoeckle
