PNM EXPANDS WHOLESALE GENERATION FLEET

(ALBUQUERQUE, N.M.) - PNM Resources (NYSE: PNM) announced today it has bought a one-third interest in a partially constructed, natural gas-fired power plant in southern New Mexico. The company expects the 570 megawatt (MW) plant to be operational by summer 2006.

It is anticipated that ultimate ownership of PNM Resources' asset will reside at its utility subsidiary Public Service Company of New Mexico (PNM) and add to its wholesale power supply. Tucson Electric Power Co., a subsidiary of UniSource Energy Corp. (NYSE: UNS), and Phelps Dodge Energy Services, LLC, a subsidiary of Phelps Dodge Corp. (NYSE: PD), each have a one-third interest in the plant as well. The companies purchased the entity that owns the combined-cycle plant, located in Deming, N.M., from Duke Energy (NYSE: DUK).

"Luna Energy Facility is a perfect fit with PNM's long-term wholesale growth strategy - and evidence of our continued commitment to enhance shareholder value by economically expanding our generation resources in the Southwest," said PNM Chairman, President and CEO Jeff Sterba. "This acquisition allows us to continue to grow our long-term contract business, and we will focus on executing long-term sales out of the unit."

PNM's stake in the plant gives the company an additional 190 MW of power to serve growing electric demand throughout the Southwest. The unit has access to interstate gas transmission lines and the ability to deliver electricity to major market hubs in the Southwest - Four Corners, Palo Verde, and Mead. Sterba said he expects the plant's first year of operation to be about three percent accretive to the company's earnings and cash flow.

With its portion of the Deming plant, PNM will have added about 600 MW to its generation portfolio since 2002, growing its portfolio about 10 percent a year. In recent years, PNM has signed long-term contracts to supply power to a U.S. Naval Base in San Diego and, in Arizona, the City of Mesa, Pinal County, and Salt River Project.

The companies paid a combined $40 million to acquire their interests in the plant, which is fully permitted, and will invest about $110 million combined to complete construction. Once fully constructed, the plant will have a cost basis of about $260 per kilowatt, one of the lowest costs in the region for a combined-cycle gas plant. PNM will oversee construction and operate the plant.

Duke Energy suspended construction on the plant in September 2002, when the plant was nearly half complete. The engineering work is 95 percent complete; major equipment is on site and well maintained.

"Initially, PNM Resources will pay cash for its portion of plant acquisition and construction costs, with the intention of issuing approximately $100 million of mandatory convertible securities at or near the close of the previously announced TNP Enterprises acquisition," said PNM's Senior Vice President and Chief Financial Officer John R. Loyack.

The funds will be used for plant acquisition and further growth opportunities. PNM Resources has consulted with both Moody's and Standard & Poor's regarding the issuance of the securities. Based on those conversations, the company believes it will retain current Baa2 and BBB ratings.

Management of PNM will be discussing the transaction at the upcoming Bank of America Securities 2004 Energy Conference in Las Vegas on Nov. 15 at 1:50 p.m. MST. A simultaneous webcast will be available at PNM.com. In addition, management will be available for company visitations during the American Gas Association's Mini-Forum for the Financial Analyst Community, on Nov. 18 from 8:30 a.m. to 11:30 a.m. EST, at the Grand Hyatt in New York City.

PNM Resources is an energy holding company based in Albuquerque, New Mexico. PNM, the principal subsidiary of PNM Resources, serves about 460,000 natural gas customers and 405,000 electric customers in New Mexico. The company also sells power on the wholesale market in the Western U.S. PNM Resources stock is traded primarily on the NYSE under the symbol PNM.
