Update on RBS's remaining State Aid obligation regarding the business previously described as Williams & Glyn

26 July 2017

Following the consultation process carried out by the European Commission ("EC") and a market testing exercise carried out by HM Treasury ("HMT"), RBS has been informed by HMT that an alternative remedies package has now been agreed in principle between HMT and the EC Commissioner responsible for competition.

This revised package is focused on the following two remedies to promote competition in the market for banking services to small and medium enterprises ("SMEs") in the UK.

A £425m Capability and Innovation Fund, to be administered by an independent body, that will grant funding to a range of competitors in the UK banking and financial technology sectors; and
An Incentivised Switching Scheme which will provide £275m of funding for eligible challenger banks to help them incentivise SME customers of the business previously described as Williams & Glyn to switch their accounts and loans from RBS paid in the form of "dowries" to the receiving bank. An additional £75m will be made available by RBS to cover customers' costs of switching.

This revised package will be submitted to the EC's College of Commissioners for approval and if agreed will form the basis of a new term sheet in relation to RBS's remaining State Aid commitments. It is expected to come into effect during H2 2017, upon which RBS will no longer be obliged to achieve separation and divestment of the business previously described as Williams & Glyn by 31 December 2017.

A £750m provision was recognised in RBS's 2016 Annual Results in relation to the previously proposed package of measures. An incremental charge of £50m in relation to the revised package and its implementation costs will be recorded in the RBS H1 2017 results which will be announced 4th August 2017, taking the total provision to £800m.

RBS will incur running costs for the duration of the scheme, which are estimated at around £35m and will be substantially incurred before the end of 2019. Furthermore, under the terms of the revised package, should the uptake within the Incentivised Switching Scheme not be sufficient, RBS could be required to make a further contribution, capped at £50m.

Ross McEwan, RBS CEO, said “We welcome the progress that HMT and the EC Commissioner responsible for competition have made on agreeing an alternative package of remedies to increase competition in the SME marketplace. We await a formal decision on this proposal which would allow us to resolve our final State Aid divestment obligation.”
