Portfolio Review

The TAIEX gained 2.66% in US dollar terms during December with lower turnover as investors stayed on the sidelines before the end of the year. The renewed fear of SARS during the month did not have a negative impact on the market, as the new SARS case was found to be an isolated incident. In terms of sector performance, the technology sector continued to under perform the TAIEX, while certain non-technology sectors outperformed it significantly. The banking sector was up 3.20% in NT dollar terms, spurred by positive sentiment generated from the government's decision to allow hostile takeovers within the banking sector. Interest also focused on the plastics, steel, and cement sectors, which were up 9.16%, 6.47%, and 8.87% respectively in NT dollar terms. The Fund outperformed its benchmark with a return of 2.72% in US dollar terms in December.

The Fund was able to outperform the benchmark primarily due to better stock selection in the technology and shipping sectors. Our sector balanced strategy also worked well, as we were able to participate in the rallies in non-technology sectors. Looking ahead, we expect that we will be gradually shifting our investments into more cyclical areas such as technology and industrial materials in light of the continued global economic recovery in 2004.

* Returns for the Fund are historical total returns that reflect changes in net asset value per share during each period and assume that dividends and capital gains, if any, were reinvested. Returns for the Taiwan Stock Exchange Index are not total returns and reflect only changes in share prices but do not assume that cash dividends, if any, were reinvested, and thus are not strictly comparable to the Fund returns. Past performance is not indicative of future results of the Fund. Returns are annualized, except for periods of less than one year which are not annualized.

 The Fund's fiscal year commences on September 1.
