AVIATION GENERAL, INCORPORATED
ANNOUNCES

STRATEGIC CORPORATE INITIATIVES

BETHANY, Oklahoma- Aviation General, Incorporated (NASDAQ:AVGE) announced that its Board of Directors has authorized the following strategic corporate initiatives: an exchange offer, a 1-for-3 reverse stock split, and the reactivation of its Stock Repurchase Program. The Company also plans to seek additional capital through the private placement of a significant ownership interest and/or merger with a strategic partner, predicated on an appropriate corporate valuation.

Under the exchange offer, Aviation General's shareholders can exchange one share of common stock for $1 principal amount of debentures. The debentures will bear interest at 8% per year, payable semi-annually each June 30 and December 31, starting on December 31, 2001. The principal amount of the debentures will be due on December 31, 2003, subject to prepayment at the company's option, without penalty or premium. The commencement and expiration dates of the exchange offer will be announced when the Company commences the offer and files a tender offer statement with the SEC. Following the completion of the exchange offer, the Company plans to effect a reverse stock split of 1-for-3 shares.

The Company believes that the consummation of the exchange offer and reverse stock split will significantly reduce the Company's float of freely tradable shares and satisfy Nasdaq minimum bid requirements. The Company currently has approximately 6.5 million shares issued and outstanding, of which the float of publicly tradable shares is approximately 5 million shares.

The Company also plans to seek additional capital through the private placement of a significant ownership interest and/or merger with a strategic partner, predicated on an appropriate corporate valuation. The Board of Directors has also authorized the reactivation of the Company's Stock Repurchase Program.

Aviation General believes its stock is significantly undervalued, having closed yesterday at less than one third of its book value at June 30, 2001. Furthermore, the Company believes that its FAA Commander Type Certificates alone are worth more than 20 times its market capitalization, as it takes a minimum of $50 million to $100 million of investment, and three to five years to design, prototype, test, and receive FAA Type Certification, irrespective of the additional investment required to establish and commence manufacturing, service, sales, and support activities.

The Company believes it is positioned to significantly increase sales of its newly manufactured single engine high performance Commander aircraft, as lower interest rates, which significantly lower aircraft purchase finance costs, take effect and the overall economy improves. Commander is also well positioned to gain market share for several reasons, including the continuing building of its reputation for excellence, and the recent demise of one of its four competitors, which is no longer producing aircraft, and which had more than 25% market share of new single engine high performance aircraft sales last year.

The Company also plans to increase its brokerage, refurbishment, parts, service and support capabilities for all types of new and pre-owned high performance piston aircraft, as well as jet aircraft through its wholly owned subsidiary, Strategic Jet Services, Inc.

Aviation General, Incorporated is a publicly traded holding company with two wholly owned subsidiaries, Commander Aircraft Company and Strategic Jet Services, Inc. Commander Aircraft Company (www.commanderair.com) manufactures, markets and provides support services for its line of single engine, high performance Commander aircraft, and consulting, brokerage and refurbishment services for all types of piston aircraft. Strategic Jet Services, Inc. (www.strategicjet.com) provides consulting, sales, brokerage, acquisition, and refurbishment services for jet aircraft.
