Dear colleagues,

Today we are publishing our interim report for the first nine months of the current year. Overall, we can be satisfied with how our sales and earnings have developed. We are also on track with our LIFT efficiency programme and are making good progress in our operating segments, Linde Engineering and corporate functions.

The positive business development was once more driven by revenue growth in the Asia/Pacific and EMEA regions. Our plant construction business also performed well, where we were able to increase order intake and revenue despite intense competitive pressure.

Looking at the figures: Group revenue in the first nine months of the year rose to just under EUR 12.9 billion, 2.7 percent up on the previous year. We were able to increase operating profit by 3.8 percent to around EUR 3.2 billion. At 24.5 percent, the Group's operating margin was a little higher than in the previous year.

In our Gases Division, revenue increased slightly on a comparable basis and amounted to EUR 11.2 billion at the end of September. Adjusted for currency and natural gas price effects, this is a plus of 1 percent. Adjusted for exchange rate effects, operating profit amounted to EUR 3.2 billion, up 3.5 percent on the previous year. In particular, the on-site supply of major customers and the bulk business developed positively. In our on-site business, plant start-ups – particularly in Northern Europe and the Middle East and Eastern Europe region – made a positive contribution to earnings. In North America, on the other hand, the impact of price reductions as a result of government tenders continues to be clearly felt in our Healthcare business.

In our Engineering Division, we increased revenue by 4 percent to EUR 1.8 billion. Operating profit also rose to EUR 152 million – an increase of 4.1 percent. At the end of September, order intake came in at just under EUR 2 billion, an increase of nearly a quarter over the previous year's figure. In addition to the major order for our customer Braskem in Texas, the third phase of the Amur GPP project in Eastern Russia also made a significant contribution to this improvement. Linde is the licensor for cryogenic gas separation technology for this major project, which is to be implemented in five phases by 2024.

In recent weeks, we have also reached important milestones on the road to our planned merger with Praxair. On 27 September, Praxair shareholders approved the merger with Linde at a special meeting of Praxair's shareholders. For our Linde shareholders, the acceptance period of the exchange offer for shares ends on 7 November. The minimum acceptance ratio was lowered at the beginning of this week. We are already over the 60 percent minimum acceptance ratio that we set jointly with Praxair. The reduction in the acceptance ratio extended the acceptance period by two weeks. This means that shareholders who were previously unable to tender their shares – for example, index funds – can now also be included. On Wednesday this week, for example, Linde AG shares were replaced in the German DAX index by the tendered Linde AG shares. However, it remains crucial that further shareholders accept the exchange offer in order to reach the important 75 percent hurdle.

A further significant condition for the merger is a total of 24 antitrust approvals. We are in contact with the relevant authorities and are making good progress in this area as well. At the present time, approvals from Russia and three other countries have already been granted. We will of course continue to inform you in a timely manner about the next milestones in the preparation for the merger.

Our overall good figures for the past nine months show that, even in this extraordinary time, we are able to successfully manage our day-to-day business and expand it in many areas. This is a great achievement by the entire Linde team and, together with my colleagues on the Executive Board, I would like to thank you most sincerely for your professionalism and your continued high level of commitment.

Best regards,

Aldo Belloni
